

Stuart Scott studied and practiced photography for over five decades. His first introduction came when he worked on his high school yearbook. He took and developed pictures using black & white film.

After retiring from GE in 2012, he focused his activities on “Giving Back” to the community donating his photographic skill & images to various nonprofits such as Charlottesville Senior Center, UVA Hospital Volunteers, The United Way along with several churches.

His photographs have been exhibited at Martha Jefferson Hospital, Montpelier, Ashlawn-Highlands and with the Piedmont Council for the Arts monthly exhibition in the CitySpace. He has contributed in the publishing of an iBook, "Back Talking on the Mountain of God", pairing his images with the poems from five poets.

He has been a member of the Sentara Martha Jefferson Art Committee for the last 8 years. The 2023 CVILLE-Weekly Photo Contest awarded his White Pelican fishing photo 4th place.
